

The Transition Year Mural 'Under The Sea'

The Transition Year students went to the Museum in Kiltimagh to bring an old wall back to life. Each day TY students went to the Museum to paint the wall. It started off as an old dirty yellow wall and by the time they were finished it was a new detailed and colourful wall. The wall is divided into sections, each section represents something meaningful, for example there's a section of the wall with trains on it to bring the old train station back to life. Another section has instruments and music notes that represents the Mayo School of Music building that is in the Museum. Finally the 'Under the sea' section of the wall is there to bring colour and liveliness to the old fashioned Museum and also an eye catcher for the public. The whole project was a huge success and everybody who was involved really enjoyed it and also the community was very impressed with the outcome.
